

Group of Main Buildings

THE Agricultural College of Utah

STANDS for broad, liberal training in all the industrial arts. It is the school for the masses. It teaches the present and future farmers, dairymen and ranchers of Utah and adjacent states how to get the greatest returns, in pleasure and profit, from their fields and flocks. It teaches the fruit growers how to raise the best fruit and get the best prices. It teaches the blacksmith, carpenter, machinist and carriage builder how to climb to the top of his profession.

It teaches the present and especially the future house-wives and mothers of Utah how to decrease the routine and drudgery, and how to increase the enjoyment of the profession of home-making. It turns out an annually large numbers of trained business men. It has provided the State and also the Nation with many agricultural experts.

NOW IS THE TIME

For the young men and women of Utah to begin planning where they will go for next year's schooling. In planning be sure to give the A. C. U. all due consideration. Remember, it is the great industrial school of the Intermountain Region. Yet the culture studies are by no means neglected. The student's training in Literature, History, Art and Music runs parallel with the practical work in the work shops and kitchens. Tuition is free. Entrance Fee $5.00. Send for an illustrated circular. Address The Registrar, A. C. U., Logan, Utah. College opens, Tuesday, September 15th.

View on Grounds,--Experiment Station